

A college-educated workforce, in as little as 10 months.

Community colleges can't deliver for us unless we deliver for them.

There's no denying jobs are key to economic recovery. And community colleges prepare Americans for economy-driving jobs faster than any other educational system. Economists know it, the Obama Administration knows it and students know it. It's why there are more students attending community colleges today than ever. But while enrollment in community colleges has grown by almost 17% nationwide, state and local funding is not keeping pace. Community colleges are working hard to help students and our community. Without them, there's no telling where we'd be.

Tell your local lawmakers to increase funding for community colleges now.
